GIRL TELLS BUND'S 'LOVE' SECRETS TO DIES PROBERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18— Nineteen-year-old Helen Vooros, who for two years was a German-American Bund member, today told the Dies committee that she had renounced the Bund because the leaders had advocated "immorality" and had tried to attack her several times.

The witness, a brunette of Brooklyn, N. Y., declared complaints made by parents of Bund youth movement members against the close proximity of boys' and girls' camps were ignored and instead the leaders told members to "hide better when together."

"We were taught that to be together when we wanted to was noble and pure," she said.

GIRL IS THREATENED

Miss Vooros had been called to the stand to give testimony which committee members hoped would contradict many of the statements made by Fritz Kuhn, der fuehrer of the Bund, during his two days on the witness stand Wednesday and Thursday. But she startled committee members by the statement:

"The leaders continually annoyed me and tried to attack me several times."

"That is an amazing state of affairs," Committee Chairman Martin Dies (D) of Texas, exclaimed.

Turning to Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, Dies went on:

"Have you called any others who have been in these youth camps? We should have full information on this."

"I have not," Whitley replied, "because they would be hostile witnesses and I did not want to endanger this girl. She has already been threatened indirectly at least once."

Miss Vooros, speaking in a low voice, claimed that Bund youth leaders had openly countenanced immorality.

N.Y.-Hub Boat Saves 5 as Fire Sinks Yacht

Rescued after they fled a burning cabin cruiser off Port Jefferson, N. Y., in Long Island sound, three men and two women were brought into Boston today aboard the Eastern Steamship liner New York.

With considerable reluctance, the rescued gave their names as Capt. C. J. Blydenborg, in charge of the cruiser; Mr. and Mrs. James R. Kennedy, Miss Kennedy, who declined to give her first name, and C. H. Champion.

All were clad in slacks and jerseys or sweaters and said they were from Westport, Ct.

RESCUED KENNEDY WOMEN

According to Capt. Ralph R. McDonough of the liner, flames were sighted in the sound at 9 o'clock last night about three-quarters of a mile from the ship as it churned toward Boston.

The New York altered her course and brought her powerful searchlight into play, sweeping the waters after no sign of life was seen aboard the burning cruiser, and finally picking out a dinghy carrying five persons.

The liner lowered a lifeboat with eight men, in charge of Second Officer Charles Nelson. The lifeboat crew took aboard the five persons in the water-logged dinghy and hoisted the dinghy inboard.

Capt. McDonough said he believed the craft they had fled, the 28-cabin cruiser Hehey, owned by John Yapchuk of Norwalk, Ct., burned to the water's edge and sank.

The rescued told Capt. McDonough they were "cruising around" when the motor stalled, and that when they attempted to start it again the motor backfired and set the cruiser aflame.

For a time, they said, they fought the flames with a fire extinguisher but when the fire gained on them, they were forced to take to the dinghy.

Lost with the yacht, which had been chartered for the weekend, were clothing and other personal property of the five, as well as a quantity of provisions.

The rescued said they planned to return to Westport by train from Boston.

FIRE PERILS SHIP AT HOOSAC DOCKS

Members of the crew and Boston firemen today battled a two-alarm fire in No. 1 hold of the Lykes Coast Lines freighter Labette, which arrived last night at Pier 41, Hoosac Tunnel Docks, Charlestown.

No. 1 hold was filled with baled cotton, while among cargo on the freighter under other hatches was a large consignment of wool.

In command of Capt. Hatch, the freighter, which makes weekly trips between here and Texas ports, came in at 7:15 p. m. yesterday from Corpus Christi and Houston.

Work of unloading had begun today when flames suddenly flared in No. 1 hold and the crew set to work with the ship's fire hoses.

The flames gained against them, however, and a land alarm was sounded.

When firemen arrived, a second alarm was sounded because of the difficulty in reaching the seat of the fire and the danger to the docks and to other ships.

Thick smoke from the burning cotton rolled over the wharves and that section of the waterfront while the flames were being quelled.

The damage was not immediately estimated.

"COMEBACK" AHEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—Lillian Lorraine, called the "most beautiful actress in the world," today was taking treatments in Gotham hospital in preparation for a "comeback" to Broadway after 17 years. Her career was halted when she broke her neck.

Diphtheria Boy Fugitive Traced; Police Warn City

Hunted throughout Greater Boston by police in squad cars, a 12-year-old boy who escaped from a City Hospital ward carrying the germs of dread diphtheria was believed today to have headed for refuge at the home of an aunt in North Randolph.

North Randolph police were warned to be on the lookout for the boy, Richard Smith, 12, of East Springfield st., South End, who fled the contagious ward where he had been confined since July 3, tragic day his mother died there of the same disease and left him an orphan.

Tracing the boy's movements, police learned he had spent the night at a Haynes Park, Roxbury, home, where he was known, telling the family, in his desperate search for a lodging for the night that he had been discharged from the hospital.

Overwrought, penniless and hungry the youngster knocked on the door of the house shortly after midnight and told the woman who answered, a family friend, that he would like a place to sleep.

"Why Richard," she said, "have you run away from the hospital."

"No, I was discharged," the boy replied, as the woman told the story to the police.

Richard Smith

With her two sons at home, and a house guest, a 75-year-old woman, all the bedrooms were occupied, she added, so she made Richard a bed on the living room couch.

"When I started to get breakfast this morning, I asked Richard if he wanted any, and he said he did," she stated.

"But while I had my back turned in the kitchen, I heard

MOTHER WRITES PLEA FOR SON, DIVES TO DEATH

"Please be sure and take care of Jerrie."

Leaving a note containing this last request for her two-year-old son, Mrs. Ann McLeod Gibbs, 28, of Putnam ave., Cambridge, leaped from Harvard bridge today to death in the Charles river.

In the horrified gaze of motorists racing to the spot too late to halt her, the young wife and mother climbed the bridge rail, stood for a moment, a wraith-like figure poised in the swirling fog—then plunged 25 feet into the river.

The racing motorists, tires screaming to a stop, found that before taking the plunge she had neatly piled a pink coat, a blue hat and her handbag on the sidewalk of the bridge.

Within seconds after she struck the water, Norman Dean of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, seized a life preserver and dived into the stream. He failed to find her.

Metropolitan officers, called by a motorist who drove to the station, recovered the body.

They said they found clutched in her hand, a paper bearing the name Ann Gibbs and the address in Putnam ave.

They said also that in the handbag on the bridge was found a note which read:

"Mrs. Ann Gibbs, Mr. Edward Gibbs—Please be sure and take care of Jerrie."

Edward is her brother-in-law, at whose home she lived with his mother—her mother-in-law—Mrs. Julia Gibbs.

The brother-in-law identified the body at Northern Mortuary and said the woman had left home in the early hours of today, saying she could not sleep and was going for a walk.

Police said they believe the young mother was despondent because her husband, John J. Gibbs, is in East Cambridge jail awaiting trial next month on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Boy Tells of Flight From Dentist Chair

Billy Kennedy, 11, settled back onto the top step of the porch of his home, in Newbury st., Malden, today, took a deep breath and proceeded to tell just what happened after he leaped out of a dentist's chair yesterday, ducked around his dad, outran him to an alley and then stayed away for 18 hours.

"The dentist," observed Billy, judiciously, "was a nice guy; but, when he started towards me with that wrench, I figured it was time to get away from there."

The "wrench," it developed upon inquiry, was forceps with which the dentist intended removing three of Billy's teeth.

TWO HEADS FOR ONE

"I knew," continued Billy, while the reporter sighed in sympathy, "that I couldn't outrun my dad, so I headed into an alley."

Twisting and turning in a maze of passageways, he got away clear. Then was presented to him an age-old problem, to wit:

"You got away, now what are you going to do about it?"

Billy didn't know. He was on the verge of going home to tell his mother all about it when he met Larry Levenson, a pal, to whom he unburdened his heart.

Larry was resourceful.

"Stay with me," he urged, "I can slip you into the house. Nobody'll ever know. I'll bring your meals and—and everything. Just like the 'Prisoner of Zenda'."

Mrs. Levenson was surprised when, this morning she found two heads where she expected one in Larry's bed.

HAS ANOTHER DATE

After breakfast and a conference, Billy decided to go home. He arrived at 8 this morning, after police of Malden, Everett and Melrose had spent the night looking for him.

In reply to an observation that it wasn't very brave to run away, Billy replied:

"Aw, who's afraid?"

He has an appointment with the dentist this afternoon.

Tarzana Pleas Pouring In By Hundreds

Tarzana will probably never win a medal at a dog show, but name a blue-ribbon dog who gets hundreds of fan letters a day!

At the Animal Rescue League today it was a matter of extra clerks handling the flow of pleas from Boston Evening American readers. A few examples:

"Please listen to my plea. I have wanted a dog like Tarzana for seven years. Every child wants a playmate some time in his life and something inside me tells me that Tarzana is the doggie I've been dreaming about.

S. W. (age 13), Wollaston."

"Dear Tarzana: I read about your troubles in the American and it touches me deeply. Although it has taken me an hour to type these lines, it is worth it if I think you're the sweetest dog I've ever seen a picture of!

H. L. (age 11), Roxbury."

And Tarzana do have plenty of troubles. You remember she was found wandering unhappily on a Cambridge street. Then she spent one of the most glorious days of her tiny life in the Cambridge police station. She met little 5-year-old Jean Gaffney of Cambridge.

Jean was in the police station because she was "lost." The kindly cops gave them a grand party and then Jean went home, but nobody came to claim Tarzana, so the law took charge. Tarzana went to the Animal Rescue League to await execution.

But she's won a pardon. Evening American readers saw to that. Letters and phone calls swamped the Animal Rescue League every day. Now, it's only a matter of who will be the lucky winner of Tarzana.

You have THREE more days to write a letter to the Animal Rescue League, Carver street, Boston.

LEGION FAVORS OLD THANKSGIVING DATE

By JAMES F. McENANEY
Boston American Staff Reporter

TAUNTON, Aug. 18—A resolve assailing President Roosevelt's proposal to push the date of Thanksgiving Day forward was adopted today by members of the resolutions committee of the American Legion in convention here.

Legionnaires said the change would bring the holiday too close to Armistice Day.

They appealed to Gov. Saltonstall to keep the last Thursday in November in this Commonwealth, where the day originated, regardless of action in other parts of the country.

It is expected that the convention of 20,000 veterans will endorse the resolution some time today.

Massachusetts Legionnaires will ask the next national convention to side with them and the resolution is being forwarded to both the President and Congress.

A resolution offered by James J. McGrath Post of Framingham and the Middlesex County council of the Legion and approved by the resolutions committee, says in part:

"The American people will never tolerate involvement in any war to settle foreign affairs.

"They want to cling to the Washington policy of minding our own business and to let the rest of the world do likewise."

A resolution asking that the 1940 national convention be held in Boston was passed by the delegates.

The delegates agreed with the resolutions committee's suggestion that an early date be selected so that far western representatives can bring their children to the convention and still get them home in time for the opening of school.

CONDEMN ALLIANCES

The children should be allowed to make the convention an opportunity to enjoy a summer vacation in New England, with its unequalled seashore and mountain resorts and its perfect vacation weather, the delegates were told.

Other resolutions among 26 reported by the various committees condemned any foreign commitments which might lead the United States into war, and urged Gov. Saltonstall to appoint a director immediately for the new civil service commission.

Declaring that the commission could not function in the best interests of the Commonwealth without a director, the latter resolution demanded that a Massachusetts man be named to the post.

It had been reported that the Governor intended to reach outside the state to fill the job.

The Legionnaires heard a plea by Gov. Saltonstall that they devote themselves more than ever to the problem of American youth, upon which he said the future of the nation depends.

Asserting it was the discontent of youth which caused the upheavals in Russia, Germany and Italy and brought chaos to Europe, the Governor declared:

"We must not let it happen here."

MUST AID YOUTH

"We must make our young people content under the American form of government," the Governor asserted. "We must find them jobs and give them a start in life. That is our greatest problem today."

A charter member of Newton Post, American Legion, the Governor urged the organization's support of his fact-finding commission which, he said, was created "to furnish insurance of security for our youth in the future."

The commission, he said, was engaged in making a survey of industries, private agencies and organizations such as the Legion "to find out what can be done to make it more possible for the youth of today to get started."

The city was in full carnival spirit and regalia and the uniformed veterans "took over" with traditional fanfare and comedy antics.

"Ruthie"—Miss Ruth Green, the convention's official hostess, whose whereabouts yesterday was questioned, long, loudly and publicly by the delegates with the cry "where's Ruthie"—was on duty today, after skipping a dignified tea given by Mrs. Arthur E. Poole, wife of the mayor. Turned out she went to a clambake with some of the Legionnaires instead.

Officials estimated that 100,000 would witness the annual "big parade," which will climax the three-day convention festivities on Saturday.

CLOSE CONTESTS DUE

With election of state officers and delegates to the national convention in Chicago next month looming large in tomorrow's agenda, a hot three-cornered fight was due for state commander.

Nominated were Ralph A. Lavers of Southbridge, beaten by a narrow margin last year, Richard Cunningham of Boston and Dr. Elton V. Faass of Medfield.

Among the leaders of 10 candidates named for the five vice-commanders was Thomas Quinn of Cambridge, who was nominated for re-election.

V. F. W. to Hold 8-Hour Parade

The parade which will climax the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Boston on August 29 will take eight hours to pass any given point, it was estimated today as Cornelius A. Reardon, secretary to Mayor Tobin, announced the route.

The start will be at the corner of Massachusetts ave. and Beacon st. at 1 p. m.

The column will proceed down Beacon st., past the State House, where Governor Saltonstall will review it, down School st., past the City Hall, where it will be reviewed by Mayor Tobin, turn right on Washington st. to Winter, to Tremont to Boylston, through Park Square to Columbus ave., and end at Columbus ave. and Berkeley st.

George Eyster, delegate from the George H. Durfee Post, St. Louis, Mo., was first delegate to present himself to receptionist Catherine Cadegan as unofficial opener of the convention.

Barre Fears Clash Of CIO and AFL

SOUTH BARRE, Aug. 18—Fears of a major clash between the A. F. of L. and the CIO, which is moving into the Barre strike area, grew today, following a horsewhipping and a fist fight which climaxed a meeting of independent union workers addressed by three CIO organizers.

With the CIO reporting 500 memberships already from the 600 members of the independent union which defied A. F. of L. strike orders against the Barre Wool Combing Co., Detective Lieut. Edward J. McCarthy from the Worcester State Police barracks was assigned to strike duty in Barre.

Meanwhile, Police Chief William G. Butler reported a horsewhipping between two men not employed at the plant, but who engaged in an argument over the merits of the strike. He issued a warrant charging George Jacobs with assaulting Joseph Patricione.

The fistic melee, Butler said, occurred when independent union members, after listening to the exhortations of the CIO organizers, clashed on the sidewalk with a group loitering outside the building.

From the company side, H. N. Flanders, Jr., company treasurer, wrote a letter to Governor Saltonstall asking whether he approved acts of Labor Commissioner James T. Moriarty.

"We believe," the letter stated, "Mr. Moriarty is so biased in his judgment by his past and present labor affiliation, which happens to be that of the striking minority group whom he supports, that it is impossible for him to act with strict impartiality and detachment."

Notables Attend Fr. Holland Rites

Attended by civic dignitaries, including Mayor Lawrence J. Gillis, a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated today in the Immaculate Conception Church, Revere, for the Rev. Timothy J. Holland, 76, its late pastor.

Fr. Holland died Tuesday night at Marblehead, where he was vacationing.

The celebrant was the Rt. Rev. Joseph F. McGlinichy, of St. Mary's Church, Lynn. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Peabody.

Dignitaries in attendance included the Rt. Rev. Richard J. Cushing, auxiliary bishop of Boston, nearly 500 Knights of Columbus, and representatives of all the spiritual societies of the church.

The City Council attended in a body and Mayor Gillis ordered Revere flags at half-staff.

YAPRAN ALAJAJIAN

Wife Slashed, Boxer Hunted

Convicted once of shooting a young woman, a boxer known as "Pepper Martin," whose real name is Yapran Alajajian, was sought by police again today, this time for an alleged attack upon Mrs. Florence Alajajian of 14 Florence st., South End, his estranged wife, whom he is alleged to have slashed on the face and wrist near her home.

Alajajian was in court yesterday, police revealed, accused of having threatened his wife, from whom he has been separated four times. He was placed on probation, and, today apparently made good his threat. She was reported not in serious condition at city hospital.

Pick Board to Probe Bay State Railroads

Armed with blanket authority to investigate every phase of railroading within the borders of the Commonwealth, first members of a board were named today by Gov. Saltonstall, President Joseph R. Cotton of the Senate, and Speaker Christian A. Herter of the House.

Governor Saltonstall's appointees are Eben G. Townes of West Elm st., Brockton, prominent attorney and civic leader; A. Perry Richards, town councilor of Plymouth, and Thomas C. O'Brien of Brighton, former district attorney of Suffolk County, who is slated to represent the interests of organized labor in the inquiry.

President Cotton named Sen. Jarvis Hunt, North Attleboro, while Speaker Herter named two of three to be selected from the House.

They are Reps. William A. Jones, Barnstable, and Rudolph F. King, Millis. A third, a Democrat, will be named after a conference with Minority Leader Albert F. Morris.

Other members, ex-officio, are Attorney General Dever and Chairman McKeown, of the State Board of Public Utilities.

The commission, which has $20,000 to work with, is charged specifically with a study of the action of the New Haven railroad, which has announced that because of deficits, all passenger traffic over the Old Colony system, serving the whole of southeastern Massachusetts, will be ended Sept. 24.

A study is also to be made of the feasibility of co-ordinating all transportation systems in and around Boston for the purpose of serving such communities as Quincy and Brockton.

Atty.-Gen. Dever also given $20,000 in the last days of the legislative session, has not yet announced the name of the railroad expert he has engaged to aid the state in its fight against discontinuance of Old Colony service.

Weymouth Tax Rate $26.50

Weymouth led all other cities and towns in the state today in announcing its 1939 tax rate of $26.50. It was the first town to set the tax rate since the biennial budget was adopted by the Legislature.

The figure is an increase of $1 over the tax rate last year.

Although Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long requested cities and towns not to announce their tax rates until after Sept. 1, to avoid town meetings until after that time, Harry E. Bearce, clerk of the board of assessors, said Weymouth has a law requiring a 30-day interval between notice of a town meeting and the meeting.

Pinkquillicus Is Back!

Famed Explorer Saw Cat!

Prof. J. Walter Pinkquillicus, B. S., big-game hunter, anthropologist and curator of the South Boston Museum of Psychological Pathology, returned today from Inner Roxbury, along the tin coast of the Charles, where he had been sent to tracking down the man-eating alley cat to its lair.

Severely bruised from being struck by too much musty and rye and with scratches all over his face and arms, the professor is resting today preparatory to making formal report of Rep. Eric Nelson (R.) of West Roxbury as to what he found.

It was reported that efforts may be made by Secretary Joseph A. Cahalan of the board of health to suppress the report on the grounds that the professor is a second "Doc" Cook.

AH, HIS DISCOVERY

The Pinkquillicus reports in part follows:

"We had little difficulty crossing the straviskand but the sorieldoop was a different hors d'oeuvre. Some maklamas had fragate the booline. Over the barsbex cause the skooporan, while the fogeisanger whupped the flacus. Also a smorgasbord.

"But," he was reminded, "the cats, professor?"

"Oh, yes, the cats," he replied. "Good, I'll have some."

Representative Nelson ordered it passed for third reading and engrossed. In the meantime Secretary Cahalan brought a note of crass commercialism into the controversy between himself and the solon.

"I want," he said, "a special appropriation of $100 if the cats are to be driven out."

"Bomb 'em!" said Representative Nelson, "Torpedo 'em! If Brookline can get rid of its starlings, why can't West Roxbury get rid of the cats which keep it awake nights? Besides, they're Dedham cats, and ought to be made to go home nights.

"Mrs. Johnson (original complainant in this cause celebre) shall sleep in peace. What? A hundred dollars? Who said a thousand?"

"Cats," sighed weary Professor Pinkquillicus. "Cats, what a spanlin of a corrugate!"

Ban Walking On Seal of President

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Tourists no longer can go home and tell the folks that they walked on the President's seal in the main hall at the White House.

A little "fence" of brass posts with red cord strung through them has been installed to protect the seal—a circular plaque, of yellow bronze inlaid in the floor.

Expect Squalus Will Reach Port in Week

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 18—Encouraged by the second successful "blow and tow" of the submarine Squalus, naval officials estimated today that the sunken sub and her crew of 26 dead would be brought to port within a week.

A new trip must be made through the shifting currents of the Piscataqua river before the submarine reaches drydock. There she will be opened.

Two men played heroic parts in the final stages of raising operations, risking being ground to pulp between the huge bobbing steel pontoons as they performed last minute tasks essential before the long tow could be undertaken.

DARE DEATH ON JOB

They were Gunner W. P. Baron and Louis Zampiglione, gunner's mate, first class.

It was Baron's task working up to his neck in the chill ocean, to cut away the ties binding together the shifting pontoons and then, as the towing line from the Falcon to the bow of the submarine snapped, to bend a substitute hawser to the bow pontoons.

Stripped to the waist, Baron worked feverishly to secure the heavy hawser, and probably saved a serious disaster which might have been caused by the salvage ship swinging against the grinding pontoons, according to officials.

Zampiglione's task was no less dangerous, as he ducked far below the surface to lock the air intake valves on the bow pontoons.

A slip for either man would have plunged him between the steel cylinders, with little hope of getting out alive.

They were drawn from their dangerous perches with rope thrown from the deck of the salvage ship.

Divers made ready to descend to the new resting place of the Squalus, a soft bank four miles off Ray Beach, to survey the underwater terrain and to determine the effects of the tow on the web of cables and air lines. The Squalus is now only 90 feet below the surface as compared to the 240 feet in which she sank.

The second tow was more successful than the first when the Squalus was hung on an uncharted mud bank. The course of the second tow had been carefully charted and the resting place selected in advance.

The Squalus is now five miles nearer shore, about a mile and a half from White Island Light. The actual length of the tow was more than six miles, but a zig-zag course was made imperative by tidal conditions.

New Patriarca Indictment Today

Supplementary indictments in connection with the $3278 payroll robbery of the Oxford Print Company plant, Allston, March 18, 1937, were returned against Raymond L. S. Patriarca, Rhode Island's Public Enemy No. 1, and "John Doe" and "Richard Roe" today.

The trio—the last two unidentified except by the conventional appellations of legal proceedings—were indicted yesterday by the Suffolk County grand jury for the actual robbery. The indictments today allege assaults upon William H. Perry, treasurer of the company, and Henry P. Porter, its president, during the robbery.

With return of the new indictments before Judge Thomas J. Hammond, the jury was excused. The next will be called September 6.

HUB'S OWN TROOPS IN BATTLE

PLATTSBURG, Aug. 18—Boston took the field against the rest of New England today, as the Yankee Division moved into action here on an ever-widening front.

"Boston's own," the 101st regiment, was arrayed against troops from the North Shore and Western sections of the state, as Massachusetts' 8139 citizen soldiers under command of Maj.-Gen. Daniel Needham split up into opposing forces in preparation for full division maneuvers beginning Monday, and the climax workout of the entire First Army next week.

PRESS FOR VICTORY

Horse-play and military enthusiasm taking forms strange to regular army men marked the action, as the troops moved forward.

The National Guardsmen, pressing for a paper "victory," gave the umpires a tough struggle, as they showed a tenacious disposition to ignore imaginary difficulties and disasters put before them during their advance.

Did a soldier step out of the bushes waving a flag to indicate some natural barrier, a quick-witted non-commissioned officer was apt to solve the problem with the same imaginative ease as the umpires had shown in thinking it up.

Warned not to cross a bridge because it had been destroyed, a non-com shouted back:

"Shucks, we're swimming."

PRIVATE COMMENDED

This "chicken, you're a fish" technique, while it brought grief and headaches to umpires accustomed to passive acceptance of the hard and fast rules of sham warfare, was commended by Lieut.-Gen. Hugh Drum, commander in chief of the maneuvers, who said it showed the right kind of enthusiasm.

One Boston citizen-soldier was commended by Maj.-Gen. Morris B. Payne for valor before the troops left camp. He was Pvt. Daniel Sherman of Headquarters Company, 101st Infantry, who stuck to his post at a field telephone until a lightning bolt knocked him unconscious during a thunderstorm.

The troops moved about five miles from their camp here to open hostilities today, with objectives of both sides remaining secret—one point in which the games maintain a warlike semblance.

For the rest, caution is observed to prevent injuries, which are far more likely to occur during after-supper horseplay than in "combat."

Find Boy, 3, Wandering In Pajamas

Sauntering happily through the dark in Beach st., Roslindale, clad in pajamas, and with a teddy bear clasped in his arms, a curly-haired boy of three was picked up by police early today after objecting vociferously to the official interruption of his stroll.

A distracted father found him at the station an hour later and took him home.

The boy was Neal Regan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Regan of 392 Beach st.

Mr. Regan could not explain how the child arose and got out of the house.

His parents were asleep, and a little sister, Marylin, was the first to discover he had vanished and gave the alarm.

The teddy bear is an inseparable companion around the house, but Neal, up to now, has not been addicted to night prowling.

Sen. Johnson Fights F. D. Neutrality Bill

(Special to Boston Evening American)

CHICAGO, Aug. 18—Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, central figure in the fight that defeated Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations covenant, is speeding home today to take the stump against President Roosevelt's neutrality program.

He predicted in Chicago that neither the next Congress nor any other will give an American President the power to involve the nation again in European wars. He said:

"The President seems determined to get us into the next dog fight in Europe or Asia. Some of us are equally determined that he shan't. My present judgment is that he will be defeated.

"At any rate we are going to take the war issue to the people, and with what ability I possess I propose to make that the biggest issue confronting our people today."

Before leaving Chicago Mrs. Johnson disclosed that she and the Senator originally had reservations on the ill-fated City of San Francisco that was wrecked by saboteurs in Arizona last week.

With a smile, she said:

"We're taking the City of San Francisco just the same, and I don't think we need to worry one bit."

Charlestown Pair Held as Wreckers

Two Charlestown youths were seized by Medford police today after residents declared four men had pushed an automobile off a cliff into a 20-foot pool of water.

Several residents of the section near the intersection of Sidney and Second streets said the four men drove the car to the brink, then alighted and shoved it over the edge.

Actors Row Decision Splits AFL Chiefs

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 18 (AP)—Split over what to do about the dispute among actors' unions, the American Federation of Labor's executive council recessed today without reaching a decision.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, said the council had "nearly completed" a statement of its position, and this would be communicated tomorrow to officials of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America.

Hitler's Paper Warns That War Danger Is Near

BERLIN, Aug. 18 (INS)—Europe trembled today in a new German battle over the demand that a solution of the Danzig and Polish Corridor problems must be a matter of days.

A German government spokesman, in but slightly less explosive terms, added: "[illegible] time [illegible] Or [illegible] and speed [illegible] must."

'Our Leading Citizen' Is Exciting Film of Labor Struggle

HOMESPUN BOB BURNS STAR AT PARAMOUNT

By HARRIS MORGAN

Neither to the right nor to the left but dab smack in the middle of the road are we here young America should set its collective feet, and Bob Burns sums it up in a homespun speech he makes to the citizens' committee in "Our Leading Citizen."

In just such a middle of the road fashion does Paramount go about presenting the story of American labor vs American capital on the Paramount and Fenway screens this week. There isn't a syllable's deliverance in the footage allowed each side, with Bob Burns the party of the first part and Gene Lockhart the party of the second part.

The erstwhile Arkansas traveler is cast as a lawyer philosopher in this Irvin Cobb story of a practising patriot whose principles out-vote his purse. The Lawyer Lem Schofield role is perfect for the ex-bazooka player, who is no stranger to mellow philosophizing.

On the other side of the fence we have "Tycoon" Tapley, played by capable Gene Lockhart with stuffed-shirt aplomb and authority. Although he and his stockholders have been collecting heavy dividends Lockhart puts through a 10 per cent cut at one of his mills. This precipitates a strike.

Bob Burns who is on the side of the strikers, resigns as Lockhart's counsel. Joseph Allen, Jr., son of his deceased partner and recently appointed member of Burns' law firm, chooses to align himself with Lockhart.

Meanwhile, ruthless Charles Bickford arrives with hired strike-breakers. So does Paul Guilfoyle, Red agitator, who "comrades" the strikers. The mill is bombed, one of the workers' leaders is killed and a citizens' protest meeting is called.

LIBBY HOLMAN, who has been containing with Cole Porter in the summer theaters in old but good [illegible] it to Marblehead Monday for a week's run.

'ANGELS WASH FACES' ON PROGRAM AT MET

By PEGGY DOYLE

"The Angels Wash Their Faces" on the Metropolitan screen [illegible] and, too, their vocabularly still retains a dese-dose-and-dem tang.

The "angels" of the title, as you must be aware if you know your cinematic groceries, are none other than the notorious Dead Enders in a new and better mood and tense.

They have with them in their newest Warners' release Queen Oomph herself, Ann Sheridan, the girl who by some Warner Brothers' hocus-focus has been ogling you from every magazine cover recently. Miss Sheridan's reformed, too, so that you'll hardly know her. You know, none of those oh-so-seductive satin gowns that fit better than her [illegible] all the men also [illegible] ma-a-a-ad for her. Instead, [illegible] little business-girl [illegible] like dark tailored suits and wool shirt-makers, and a social service worker role.

Starred in the film are Billy Halop, Burton Churchill and Bonita Granville.

BERT LAHR SCORES HIT IN 'WIZARD OF OZ' AT LOEW'S

Bert Lahr (left) appearing as "Lion" in film version of Wizard of Oz, Judy Garland (center) and Ray Bolger (right) as "The Scarecrow." The technicolor film showing on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

By PEGGY DOYLE.

A Lahr unto himself, to pilfer a pun, is the bumbling, stumbling fellow with the permanent-waved lion's mane in "The Wizard of Oz," Metro's screen version of the beloved children's classic now unreeling on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

Unprettier even than your old [illegible] Lahr [illegible] white lame. Bert [illegible] disdain to [illegible] himself in your [illegible] screen world.

As the Cowardly Lion [illegible] irresistible. And [illegible] literally prance [illegible] genius can be [illegible] the Lahr [illegible] a [illegible] to supply swift, [illegible] on his clumsy [illegible] fifty twisting [illegible] tail, woefully bemoaning his lack of courage but, particularly, singing "If I Were King of the Forest" in his own [illegible] fashion, that elegant ditty.

Nearly 40 years old, this dazzling technicolor production of the Frank Baum story that preceded the Montgomery and Stone turn, a six years' stage hit is a honey for the boxoffice.

It is a natural for the [illegible] trade. For all its childish fantasy it has, too, adult satire, which makes it a fairy tale for all ages.

Judy Garland [illegible] Dorothy, the little girl who wandered away from a Kansas farm with her dog, Toto, [illegible] in a tornado and was whisked away to a never-never land of her own imaginings. She is joined by the Scarecrow, the Tin Woodman and the Cowardly Lion.

The Scarecrow wants a brain, the Tin Woodman a heart and the Cowardly Lion, naturally, courage. And so they accompany her to the Wizard [illegible]

Boston's Ray Bolger [illegible] Scarecrow with [illegible] ity. Between them, he and [illegible] Director Bobby Connolly, [illegible] Boston-born, have evolved dance routines that are [illegible] but routine and should give Bolger the breakaway [illegible] in Hollywood.

Jack Haley's Tin Woodman is another expertly achieved characterization perfectly keyed to the fantastic demands of the production. Frank Morgan, as the earthbound miracle-maker and the wizard of Oz, is better [illegible]

Billie Burke looks [illegible] lovely as the good witch, and Margaret Hamilton [illegible] table she's grand as the [illegible]

The village of the Munchkins, where the Traveler [illegible] is like something you've [illegible] seen and people [illegible] grotesque little people, with [illegible] der their wear, and [illegible] tumes are Singer's Midgets.

"The Wizard of Oz" is a field day for the entire family.

BAY STATE BETTER NOW IN INDUSTRY

Massachusetts, which serving as a breeding ground for industries of other states, has increased its own vitality through science and invention, says a report of a survey appearing in Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, official journal of the American Chemical Society, which will hold its 98th meeting at Boston, September 11 to 15.

The State, far from being depleted by industrial migration, is [illegible] noteworthy advances are being made through chemical research. Boston is described as an excellent example of a city preparing for "The World of Tomorrow."

"Massachusetts has kept pace in industrial growth with her population," the report declares. "This is an ideal situation, for only by co-operation between all our states, and a common prosperity enjoyed by all, can we hope to bring about business security and fresh opportunity for our children."

Under the auspices of the [illegible] and [illegible] has [illegible] of leading research and [illegible] organizations serving the [illegible] the State is said "has the opportunities of its [illegible] and laboratories for the development of new products in every field.

"History," the report continues, "has written few more exciting and tragic stories of human endeavor in industrial recovery than the narrative in which Charles Goodyear of Woburn figures as the undaunted hero, utterly devoted to one purpose—the perfecting of rubber.

"It is just 100 years since Goodyear spilled a gummy mixture on his Woburn cook stove and discovered that heat and sulphur made crude rubber flexible. Famous in France and England before he died, deeply in debt, Goodyear helped to prepare the way for 'The World of Tomorrow.'

"Today famous concerns in many Massachusetts cities and towns are still spinning out the serial story which Goodyear began.

"In Cambridge, a chemical company is putting on the market a rubber sack, like a child's balloon, designed to keep meat, chickens, beef, or ham fresh from the time it is sealed in the packing house until the housewife removes the protective bag or covering.

"Romance Strolls Beaches"

There is only one fail and that one empty. Bali had no orphanage, no poor-house, no income tax. The Balinese have never heard of gangsters racketeers or alimony

Bali is the most feminine spot on the face of the earth. For every three men there are seven women. "Stately and graceful as goddesses," wrote an enraptured visitor, "tawny-skinned, with dark glowing eyes, and proud red mouths."

Bali is a land of gorgeous life, not sordid death; a land of romance and laughter and love. Languid ladies and courteous men.

HERE TRADE WINDS whisper the oldest story in all the world, the story of a man and a maid.

EAST OF JAVA and south of Borneo lies Bali, island of enchantment. Aloof and serene, a little paradise of peace of mind, of body and soul. Vicky Baum tells us in her recent book.

Romance strolls the beaches. Laughter fills the homes. Music makes along the leafy lanes. A sanctuary where nothing much ... where there is no greed, where the sun shines always, where there has been no murder in 4 years, where divorce is unknown.

INTERESTING EVENTS in education have come to my notice lately. One booklet on the Nash Plan by Travis A. Elliott, the superintendent of the Nash School, in Nash, Texas, offers ideas for people who work with children below high school age.

Like all progressive ideas I should think it would require extraordinarily good teachers to put it into practice, but I am glad to see that they have not discarded ... pupils to become proficient in the tools of learning.

You can never develop your own interests, it seems to me, unless you know how to read and write, and if you don't discipline yourself and your mind as a child by learning arithmetic and some other subjects which may not seem so useful at the time ... will be handicapped in many of life's situations.

You may realize later in life that the mastery of ... jects has given you the necessary discipline to do correctly and well ... an uncongenial task, and life is filled with uncongenial tasks.

WHEN I was connected with Miss Dickerman in the Todhunter School, I always admired her extraordinary ability to combine the old with the new and to give each child under her care the type of training that child needed.

In resigning from the school I miss not being able to be in such ... closely with an expert in handling youngsters, but I know that the future will not hold for me any school contacts for as one grows older one must concentrate on a few activities if one is to do anything well.

AMERICA'S SAFETY lies in keeping out of the con- ... W ... American Legion.

"Another world war," he said, "would destroy the very fabric of government in the United States, take away the liberties of the people, and result in a dictatorship.

"We must be careful that our Americanism is not warped by insidious propaganda, and organizations like the American Legion must continue to counteract all subversive teachings."

... like that advice seriously.

... and A. ... are NOT OUR QUARRELS, and that participation in ... carries could result only in this country's ruin.

THE BABY DEATH RATE continues high in the ... States census statistics reveal that 54 of every 1000 die at ...

... observers are not unanimously pessimistic. Educa- ... of expectant mothers, wider hospital facilities and ... sanitation in homes give today's children a greater life ... than they would have enjoyed in 1919, when the baby ... was 100 per 1000 births.

... would have interested the late Arthur Brisbane, who ... not without cause, wrote:

"An Indian mother and child alone in the wilderness were ... more safe than a modern American mother and her baby ...

DOES RADIO DESERVE ACTORS' SCORN?

By Helen Menken

(HELEN MENKEN, stage and radio actress, writes today's column for Leonard Lyons, who is on vacation.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—This is no guest column, Leona—it's a command performance. The only bitch is that I'm not used to writing my own lines.

I first went in for reading in a big way at the age of six, when I toured with the "Red Mill" production, which starred Montgomery and Stone. When we went on the road, playing mostly one-night stands, the chorus girls took me to the library in each town.

This was for two reasons, as I recall it. First, they wanted me to learn how to read. Second, the library was usually warm, and the local hotel bedrooms in small town hotels can get cold.

HELEN MENKEN

I can remember starting to read the story of "Penrod and Sam" in South Bend, Indiana, and being called to the theater just at the most exciting part. I finished it the next day in the Davenport, Illinois, public library.

THUS I FELT the spellbinding effect of the serial even before I have been on the air I take this to mean that it is one of the most important factors in sustaining program interest. "And then what happens?" is the first question children ask and they're all set when to me.

The medieval troubadours got the biggest rise out of their audiences with ballads dealing with successive achievements and adventures of great heroes—not unlike Robin Hood, Roland and Siegfried, who lived through hair-raising experiences.

And then, to skip a few centuries when the movies started, their biggest money-makers were the serials. "The Perils of Pauline" packed them in and the film industry soon realized the value of serial entertainment, but at the time regarded them merely as fillers or Grade B productions.

With the advent of radio, which allots a short time to each program, the serial came into its own again.

• • •

MY RADIO SERIES concerns the problems of a mature woman who wants to make a success of her second marriage. These problems confront thousands of females daily. It takes adult consideration, tact and diplomacy to straighten out the successive complications which arise.

Although I have been a part of the theater since I was three, I think that radio is our most important form of amusement for it reaches the largest number of people. For this reason I can never understand why some stage performers scorn it as a medium fit only for the mentally retarded. It is rather [illegible] the country's intelligentsia.

Dare to Remember!

By Elsie Robinson

DARE to remember! Dare to dredge up every [illegible] That leaves you [illegible] Dare to recall to remember the pleasant times in [illegible] Dare to write down the compliments you've received.

BUT IT'S TOUGH TO REMEMBER THE OTHER TIMES—THE TIMES YOU'VE BLUNDERED, MADE A FOOL OF YOURSELF, TURNED YELLOW, DONE CHEAP AND SHAMEFUL AND CRUEL THINGS.

You don't want to remember things like that—things that humiliate and worry you. You want to escape from them, and so you've invented an elaborate tissue of alibis and excuses which you use even in your secret thoughts, to comfort your vanity and soothe your conscience.

But if you look at the bright side only, you learn nothing about yourself, or life, and as a consequence you'll continue to commit stupid, silly and vicious acts for the cause of them will still be in you.

YOU'LL NEVER PREVENT MISTAKES IN THE FUTURE UNLESS YOU STUDY THE MISTAKES OF THE PAST.

STOP THINKING of those past mistakes as lapses on your records. As a matter of fact, a mistake is your greatest asset—if you'll use it right.

YOU CAN LEARN MORE FROM ONE PAINFUL MISTAKE THAN YOU [illegible] FROM A DOZEN SUCCESSES.

Manners

BY MRS. BEECKMAN

"Betty always knows exactly what to do and what to say. I wish I could meet people the way she does."

"Ted is so popular with everybody. I wish I could be."

Perhaps the Charm of Manner Guide is what you need. Here are rules for those social gaucheries.

Did I hear you say that these blunders are the sins of the gods?

Happily the real truth is that popularity, charm of manner, call it what you will, is not a gift but a result which will prove high-handed persistence.

The cat-eye, the knitting ear, the understanding heart are what we need when we meet people we set out on our golden way to EARN popularity. For it must be earned as most desirable things must be earned.

Your personality, the sum of all the qualities that make you either liked or disliked by people we meet, there revealed than when you are on your vacation.

What impression will you make?

Give yourself a Social Intelligence Test the next time you are introduced to people. Say pleased to meet you. When you should be saying a courteous and correct "How do you do" to establish in the other person's mind that you are a bit aloof and friendly [illegible] out." Do you simply hug right that every waking excuse "I am so self-conscious," instead of gallantly going forth to meet the spirit of the other person, trying to find out and participate in his or her interests and enthusiasms?

Have you realized, centered on your good points, so as to make the most of them? Have you learned to be yourself; to be natural or do you try to imitate some type which for the moment [illegible] features you

All-Vegetable Meal Thrifty

By MARTHA LEE

There's nothing more refreshing now and then than a vegetable supper—a whole meal made up of crisp, crunchy vegetables, cool green salads and such. It's sort of makes you feel extra healthy, having all those plus vitamins and minerals that way.

You'll find these meals easy to do, and inexpensive besides. Taken altogether they're thrifty on your time, your tolerance and your budget, too, when you let up on the heavier meat menus and serve a stout vegetable supper at least once a week.

For a good main course dish you might turn out a baked cupful of boiled fresh corn mixed crunchy kernels seasoned with onion in chili sauce and topped with crisp snippets of golden brown bacon. Makes a pretty picture when you mix it at the table.

BROILED CORN

1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn, drained
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. chili sauce
2 strips bacon

Spread the corn in a shallow baking pan and sprinkle with salt. Pour the chili sauce evenly over the surface. Cut the bacon into small pieces and dot over the top. Place under broiler 375 deg. F. 10 to 15 minutes or until bacon is crisped and brown.

For a smartly seasoned side dish serve a bowl of beets simmered in a spicy horseradish sauce. It gives these tender-sweet beets character when you put a pungent pinch of horseradish in them that is.

BEETS WITH HORSERADISH SAUCE

1 No. 2 can whole or shredded beets
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
2 tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1½ tbsp. horseradish sauce
½ cup buttered bread cubes (½ inch thick)

Drain the beets, reserving 1 cup of liquid. Melt the butter in a saucepan and add the flour, blending well. Cook until bubbling, then add the beet juice. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add the beets together with the sugar, salt and horseradish. Pour into a medium sized baking dish, top with the bread cubes. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 30 minutes until bread cubes are browned.

HORSERADISH SAUCE

1 tbsp. evaporated milk
1 tbsp. cold water
1 tbsp. distilled white vinegar
¼ tsp. salt

Soak the horseradish in the cold water. Add the milk and salt, blending well.

For fresh beets when you wish, why not? You'll find a recipe for baked beets in the [illegible] Cookbook. Just remember to peel them after baking. Then slice with a sharp knife. A sauce for baked beets that's sure to find favor with you is made when you stir [illegible]

APPLE [illegible]

6 medium [illegible]
[illegible]
½ cup sugar
½ cup [illegible]
½ tsp. salt
[illegible]
[illegible]

Pare, core and slice the apples. Arrange a layer of the buttered bread crumbs in the bottom of a greased baking dish. Add a layer of apples, sprinkle with sugar, salt and spices. Add another layer of crumbs and apples, and so on until all are used. Pour the cream over the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour or until apples are tender. Serve hot with cream.

GIRL TELLS BUND SECRETS

National Youth leader only told us to be more cautious, and to be sure of 'PURE IMMORALITY.'"

"Once when one of the leaders tried to attack me, I went to Mr. Dinkelacker and asked his help. He said I had the wrong idea and said 'What's the matter?'"

"I thought Hitler in his book, 'Mein Kampf,' condemned immorality?" Dies interposed.

"It was explained to us that Hitler meant that it must be pure," Miss Voores replied. "We were told that it was pure to be together provided we really wanted to be."

She said that she had seen acts of immorality in both Camp Siegfried Long Island, and Camp Andover, New Jersey, both Bund camps, and had tried to quit the organization. She said Dinkelacker and her mother prevailed upon her to remain a member.

TRIP TO GERMANY

Miss Voores was a witness several months ago in the first "cause" hearings at Andover N. J. when Camp Andover was called upon to show why Camp could be granted a beer license by the authorities.

Whitley examined her at length regarding a trip which she made to Germany last year along with 14 girl members and 14 boys.

She said they went to Camp Hitzeschloss, a Hitler youth house movement camp near Plon, for training in "mental attitudes and propaganda."

In contradiction to testimony yesterday by Kuhn, the bund leader, the witness claimed the trip was financed by the bund.

Each member making the trip received $20 with which to "get ready," and steamship tickets were supplied free, she declared.

The trip was made on a German liner, she testified. Before sailing, Miss Voores said she was approached by Frederick Vandenburg, South Brooklyn bund leader, and handed a sealed, brown envelope.

DISCOVERED SECRET NOTE

"I was told that one of the political leaders on the boat—members of the crew—would approach me and ask for it after we were several days out," she said.

"Dinkelacker hauled Vandenburg out for introducing it to me. He said I hadn't been a member long enough.

I was not told what was in [illegible]

[illegible] Kart—

"On the second day out the man [illegible] member of the crew whose name she never learned, she said.

Miss Voores declared Dinkelacker was found in bed with one of the leaders when the ship, the S. S. Hamburg, was about six days out at sea.

WITH GIRL OF 17

"She was only 17 years old," said Miss Voores, adding that the unidentified girl implicated with Dinkelacker was from the Bronx, New York.

When she and other Bund girls on the trip learned of this incident, she asserted, they were warned by Miss August Clappioth to say nothing about it. Miss Voores identified Miss Clappioth as a youth leader and the wife of a Bund leader in New Jersey.

The witness, who testified that because her father was Greek and her mother German she had difficulty in getting into the Bund, provided the committee with testimony apparently linking the Bund to the Nazi government controlled League for Germans in Foreign Countries.

"Dinkelacker," she said, "instructed us to 'keep our mouths shut' about the whole matter. He said it would be very dangerous if anyone found out about the trip."

MADE HER DO WRONG

Then, she continued, Dinkelacker showed the traveling youths a letter from Hugo Haas, former Ridgewood leader of the Bund now connected with the League for German Citizens Abroad, setting out detailed instructions, as to the conduct of those going on the trip.

She said the youths were sent to Germany to get instructions in the Nazi movement so that they could come back to this country and spread propaganda" about it.

When Dies asked her why she was testifying to these things, Miss Voores replied:

"They (bund leaders) made me do such things so bad for this government that I felt that I was doing wrong."

She said she quit the bund for this reason last summer.

"This committee wants only the truth and the whole truth," Dies said.

"I'm telling the truth," she replied simply.

Miss Voores said the Hamburg [illegible] ship, the German [illegible] Railway, the German [illegible] and the Deutsche [illegible]

BEWARE OF JACOBS

[illegible] of youths on the trip, she said, were that we were to be careful with whom we talked, especially Joe Jacobs."

Rep. Starnes (D) of Alabama urged [illegible] why they were so wary of Jacobs, whom she identified as having once managed Max Schmeling, the German fighter.

"He was a Jew, we were told," she replied.

Miss Voores said that in Bund camps youths were taught from pamphlets which originated in Germany about Hitler's rise to power [illegible] National Socialist movement had appealed to the unemployed in Germany and how it could be made applicable in this country.

Referring to testimony given yesterday by Fritz Kuhn, that the Bund was interested only in propaganda; American ideals, Whitley asked if this were true.

GIVES LIE TO KUHN

"It is false," the witness said. "They always found fault with this government," Miss Voores continued. "They said it was controlled by a minority and was not taking care of the other races."

"What was this minority," Whitley asked.

"The Jews," she replied.

A weird story was told by one girl of forced night time marches and ball up rituals in which Bund members lined up before camp fires and shouted three "Heils."

These marches or "sonnenwendfeiler" were made, the Yorkville witness said, to develop endurance of the boys and girls in the youth camps, "and stumble scratches are badges of honor."

SUFFER IN SILENCE

Others were not supposed to show any sympathy when one of the marchers was hurt, pain was to be borne in silence.

After a long March which often started at 9 o'clock, the soldiers would come out on a hill, where camp fires were burning, she said.

The [illegible] and would here the [illegible] and would [illegible] [illegible] Leiter. All would join in the Nazi salute and then they would be "heils" for the particular leader who was being worshipped at that ritual.

The group often did not get back home until the early hours of the [illegible]

AUSTEN LAKE

Reggie Brown Lectures On Football Scouts

AUTUMN IS IN THE AIR. Downtown shop windows are carrying the saffron and purples of the dying season. The papers are printing publicity blurbs about All-Star football games. The official date of Thanksgiving is still in controversy. And, for the first time since last November, I met Reggie Brown, the perennial football scout.

AUSTEN LAKE

Here, in Reggie, is the papa of all football scouts—the man who invented the multifarious system of jotting down the trade mysteries of rival varsities. He talked! Reggie always talks about football—words that tumble in cascades and torrents. And this, as near as maybe, is what he had to say.

In the early days, said Reggie, a football scout was a furtive character who practiced his espionage slyly lest he be detected in his larcenous act and hoisted over the wall minus his pants. But now, said Reggie, he sits secluded in the choicest seats of the arena, being given the spying rights by the home athletic office in return for like spying rights at the varsity which he represents. He is allowed to bring his binoculars, his loose leaf note books and make a complete index of rival plays and players. He hobnobs with the enemy on easy intimacy.

★ ★ ★

COST OF FOOTBALL SCOUTING save Reggie, runs annually into thousands of dollars at most of college's like Princeton, Dartmouth, Harvard and Penn but the most unpretentious institutions employ local alumni or civic authorities who live in the vicinity.

[illegible] all sleuth record for his [illegible] noted his Harvard eye began "for intimacy and analytical study," said he in his Gold Coast [illegible] foot of a mammary scientist observing the habits of a courageous microbe." Fancy that!

Every coach said Reggie is eaten by an insatiable curiosity about [illegible] He wants to know whether a team uses a [illegible] formation, whether it alters its formations according [illegible] offensive tactics. Does it favor a man-to-man or a zone type of defense against forward passing, or a blend of both? Does it have a favorite pass catcher, like Harvard's Daughters? Are the passes fast or lobbed, deep or flat?

A team [illegible] the ball until forced to punt on fourth down or get it away with a quick kick on earlier downs? Does their kicker [illegible] behind his own [illegible] information [illegible] to back the kick perhaps put [illegible] boy on a careless defender and shooting the tackle into the [illegible] Will [illegible] run under punts at the [illegible] of the ball? An additional notion, said Reggie, of the openings [illegible] men [illegible] through.

★ ★ ★

ONCE, AS AN OFFICIAL IN A LESSER college game, I observed a man lying, tummy flat, in one end zone, a pair of field glasses to his eyes. I had seen set [illegible] officers in France observing the effect of their fire [illegible] It proved to be Reggie Brown! "I am observing the way the team spares its [illegible] he had told me. For Reggie is one of those nuts who will send clubhouse flagpoles or neighboring yards to get the right angle of advantage.

Does a team's pass program numbers both front and back? [illegible] Reggie warming to his theme. Who is their ball [illegible] and who their best blocker? What relative position do these men take in formations leading to line plays, or on wide sweeps? Does each will want his men to memorize these key numbers as audible [illegible] signaling type of attack, which is why, said Reggie, [illegible] the heat of the game a center will sometimes squawk, "What's [illegible] Not I, spot watch the short side," or "Jones is No. 1 back, [illegible] to a receiver.

Do they lateral pass on sweeping runs? That would mean bringing up the defensive halfback quickly to cover the potential lateral receiver (tricky business!). Do they lateral pass down the field? That means extra coverage on the loose man tracing the ball carrier and extra sharp, high tackling.

THESE AND MYRIAD OTHER DETAILS, according to Reggie Brown, makes the football scout an indispensable arm of any system. Do the line shift? Do they unbalance [illegible] line [illegible] plays?" Do they play their offensive ends "tight" or "split"? Does the center always hike method of snapping the ball? In fact so many details that [illegible] could hardly catch all the problems in a single afternoon. Which is why scouts in the larger colleges usually go in pairs, one to [illegible] while the other studies defense. And the business of [illegible] goes on until the week before the big game, when the sheaf [illegible] formation is complete and sent to the home head coach for digestion at a single gulp.

How much of this the coach successfully passes along to his kids and how much finally percolates, has always seemed a doubtful question. But next week there is another dose of defensive data to ad[illegible] that another. So that big time college football to [illegible] with the players forced to accept condensed culture on the gridiron than in any course [illegible]

TABOR BEATS FRANZEIM IN JUNIOR GOLF FINAL, 3-1

By BILL GRIMES

BLUE HILL COUNTRY CLUB, Aug. 18—Ed Tabor of Vesper, 19-year-old junior at Dartmouth, fought his way to the State Junior golf throne here today when he scored a thrilling 3 and 1 victory over Ed Franzeim of Bellevue in the 18-hole final.

EDWARD FRANZEIM

EDWARD O. TABOR, JR.

GALLANT LOSER—Ed Franzeim of Bellevue congratulates Ed Tabor of Vesper after the latter's victory, 3 and 1, in the State Junior golf final at Blue Hill this morning.

In the other state championship windup Walter C. Feeley, Jr., of Oakley swept to a 4 and 3 conquest of Herbert Griffith, also of Oa[illegible]

Franzeim medalist in this tourney with a great 71, gave Tabor a horse today. He seemed a bit nervous at the start and Tabor took the first and sixth holes to be 2 up at the sixth, where he holed a 5 footer.

Franzeim spurted at the eighth where he canned an eight footer, and at the ninth where he dropped in a two-footed putt to square the [illegible]

ALL SQUARE AGAIN

Tabor went right back up at the tenth with a four to Franzeim's five but the Bellevue youngster dropped a 40 foot putt for a birdie [illegible] at the 11th to square it again.

Tabor took the 13th and the lead once more. Then they [illegible] [illegible] Both and [illegible] two down. [illegible] 15th and [illegible]

FEELEY'S VICTORY

In the junior junior finale Feeley carved out a two up edge at the turn. He birdied the 13th, holing a six footer for a two, and closed the affair by chipping in for a birdie three at the 14th.

Tabor's win was a nice climax to his junior golfing days. He made his competitive debut by qualifying and going to the third round in the 1936 Hearst championships at Merrimack Valley, and has improved steadily since then.

Franzeim, former junior-junior champion, who is only 18, has two more years of junior golf.

Cobb Pilots Auto 352.94 In Trial Run on Salt Beds

BONNEVILLE FLATS, Utah, Aug. 18 (AP)—John Cobb [illegible] his racing car through the measured mile on the snow-[illegible] salt flats today at a speed announced at 352.94 miles an hour.

The northbound run started at 8:42 a. m. M. S. T., from a point approximately six miles south of the measured mile markers.

To observers it appeared as if the Englishman cut the motors on his 2600-horse power automobile before he had completed the full mi[illegible]

His speed, however, exceeded his own previous high of 350.2, set on this course last September, and was only about 45 miles an hour short of Captain George E. T. Eyston's world land speed record of 357.5.

Cobb cancelled plans for a return run and postponed further [illegible] on the land speed record at least until tomorrow.

Cobb's speed for the north run compared with Eyston's 35644 miles per hour in the same direction when the British Army officer set the present land speed record, and with Cobb's own best speed of 354.29 northbound.

Armstrong-Spoldi Bout Revived By Duce's Son

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Aug. 18 (INS)—An Italian syndicate, headed by Bruno Mussolini, son of Il Duce, has revived the Henry Armstrong-Aldo Spoldi bout, projected for Rome late next month, it was learned today.

The bout had been temporarily forgotten when the Fascist treasury refused permission for Italians to send $30,000 to this country as Ambassador's guarantee.

The Spoldi bout would be Henry's next after the Ambers fight, provided he keeps his lightweight crown.

Tabor Copies DiMag To End Bat Slump; Sox Play 5 in 3 Days

By JOE CASHMAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18—Red-headed Jimmy Tabor returned to Washington with the Red Sox today. The last time this young Alabaman showed up here he was ordered to take the next train back to Boston for breaking training rules.

This time Manager Joe Cronin could hardly wait to get his erstwhile problem child [illegible] fifth Stadium for the opening five game series with the Senators. Pegs [illegible] new batting [illegible] caused the Red Sox Deadly has [illegible] much as was [illegible] delphia when [illegible] was a [illegible] cision which was [illegible] eighth straight [illegible] the series.

"I felt better up at the plate than I had in weeks," Jim stated. "But I'm not sure whether that was due to my new stance or to the fact that I was playing in Shibe Park. I've always hit well on that field. Six of my ten homers have been made there.

"This series here will tell the story. If I've really found out and remedied what has been wrong with me, I should be back in the .300 class before we leave town."

[illegible]

"If Tabor's hitting was due to his new stance and not to Shibe Park, he should become one of our top three stickers," opined the Fenway forensic. "I never saw a player flash so much apparent improvement almost over night.

"Standing flat-footed was Jim's own idea and a very practical one. The way he had been striding at the plate, he has been swinging late on most pitches. He couldn't get set in time to hit the ball when it was out in front of him. And he was often fooled by bad pitches.

"Standing as he is now, he's always ready and is better able to follow the course of the ball. He was timing pitches perfectly yesterday.

JOE ADOPTED AS MODEL

With his new stance, Tabor is [illegible] Joe DiMaggio [illegible] at the plate, except that his feet are spread a little farther apart.

Baseball critics admit that DiMaggio has the perfect stance, but there are few others [illegible] who can stand that way and hit successfully. If Tabor is one of the few it would seem that he couldn't miss becoming a sticker.

With Tabor the big gun in a 17-hit attack in the finale against the A's, the Sox collected far more blows than they needed the way Grove was going, but they promise [illegible] help them and with five games to [illegible]

BAY STATE SPORTSMEN GET RUNAROUND BY LEGISLATORS

By DARK MONTREAL

The lads on Beacon Hill have gathered in their coat tails and scurried for home after taxing your eye teeth and giving such noble protection to the promoters of the dog tracks.

Q What did they do about protection for the striped bass?

A Nothing.

The striped bass bill died in committee with few to take notice of its demise until too late. Massachusetts must go another two years without the advantages this legislation affords in other states. The angling brotherhood was again ignored.

It may have been that during their strenuous efforts to increase their own salaries, the legislators just forgot about the bill which had wide backing and little opposition. Certainly the raucous squawk of the legislators over their failure to up their own pay drowned out the protests of the few who sensed the doom of the bass bill before the Sunday prorogation.

This department would be glad to print any explanation or comment the state fish and game division cares to make upon failure of the bill to pass. Step up, Mr. Agnew.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

THE EASTERN finals of the Hearst All-America amateur boxing tournament have once more been awarded to Boston. They will be staged at the Garden on Dec. 18 with teams from Boston, New York, Syracuse, Albany and Baltimore competing.

The New England finals will be held at the Garden on Dec. 11 following trial tournaments at the Arena in which every amateur boxer in this section of the country will receive an opportunity to display his fistic fire.

The winners in the Eastern finals will take part in the grand nationals which will be conducted at San Francisco the latter part of January or early in February. With a trip to California as an added incentive, New England boxers are certain to strive a bit harder to win one of the Eastern titles. Last year the grand nationals were held in Detroit.

Many of the boys who gained fame in the Hearst All-America tournaments are competing as professionals, and have shown to good advantage. Salvatore Bartolo, a former All-America champion, has won the New England professional featherweight title, while George Martin, Roy Kelley, Abe Denner, Yancy Henry and other winners have also distinguished themselves in the professional ring.

As 1940 will be an Olympic year, more interest than ever will center around the All-America tournament. It is likely that many of the boxers who compete in the grand nationals in San Francisco will later win places on the American Olympic boxing team.

The Irish American A. A. and the New England A. A. U. will once more give their full co-operation to the All-America shows. Both of these organizations realize that the All-America tournament does much to increase interest in amateur athletics and in particular in simon pure boxing.

The trial bouts in the All-America tourney will get underway at the Arena in October. The exact dates for these shows will be announced later.

Joe Louis Got Start in Amateur Tournament

JOE LOUIS GOT his start as a boxer while competing in amateur boxing shows. The world's champion experienced his share of setbacks while fighting his way to the top. On one occasion he was beaten at the Boston Arena while competing in the light-heavyweight class of the national championships. At the time none of the local managers of professional boxers gave Louis much consideration. They did not dream that he would become the greatest money maker the ring has known since the palmy days of Jack Dempsey.

The following year Louis went to St. Louis and won the national amateur light-heavyweight championship. Joe later turned professional, packed on weight, and won the heavyweight title from Jimmy Braddock, and then erased a knockout defeat he had suffered at the hands of Max Schmeling earlier in his ring career. Louis is getting ready to defend his championship against Bob Pastor of New York in a 20-round contest that will be held in Detroit on Sept. 20.

Tony Ferry of Fall River is one of the best of the New England amateur heavyweights, and he would like to emulate some of Louis' ring feats. Ferry will once more compete in the Hearst All-America tournament, and will also try for a place on the American Olympic team. If successful in both of these efforts, Ferry will consider turning professional.

There is a scarcity of first-class heavyweights, and any youngster who can punch and take a fair sock has a chance to gain fame and riches.

Brooklyn Is Playing Improved Baseball

The Brooklyn Dodgers open a series with the Bees at National League Park today, and will show local fans an improved article of baseball. Leo Durocher has been getting good results with the Dodgers this year. The club has drawn some large crowds when playing at home, while it has also done well on the road.

It was Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Dodgers, who was the pioneer in night baseball among the big league clubs. Regardless of the merits of night baseball itself, it has helped attendance figures in Brooklyn, Cincinnati and in Philadelphia.

I agree with Tom Yawkey that the older batters are handicapped when playing under the lights. Young eyes have a better chance of seeing the ball at night games than old ones. The veteran players also must accustom themselves to playing under the lights.

Despite all this, night baseball has come to stay. It gives the weaker clubs the revenue they need.

The Bees have been considering night baseball for two years but no definite action has been taken on the matter in view of the fact the club may transfer to Fenway Park if proper arrangements can be made with the Gaffney estate that owns National League Park and with Tom Yawkey. If the Bees go to Fenway Park, a $100,000 lighting plant will be installed, and night games will be played.

The veteran players will protest the move, but so did the oldtime placing judges when the camera was installed at the race tracks. The oldtime judges have now become accustomed to calling upon the camera. Their eyes cannot compete with Harry Day's "Eye in the Sky" that calls the finishes at Narragansett Park so accurately.

History May Repeat With Cards

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

History would only be repeating itself should the torrid Cardinals—victors in 16 of their last 18 games—overhaul the pace-setting Reds.

And the St. Louis entry wouldn't have to maintain such a terrific pace to come down in front. They have plenty of time in which to wipe out the gap between themselves and the Reds.

Eighteen years ago the Pirates came into the Polo Grounds in September boasting a seven-game lead, dropped five in a row to the Giants, and went on to blow the pennant.

UNLUCKY LEADERS

Coming down to more recent years, the team that led the National League on Sept. 1 in four of the last five seasons failed to win the flag.

On Sept. 1, 1934, the Giants were leading the Cards by 5½ games and the Cards came on to win. One year later the Cards led the Giants by 2° games and the Giants finishe in front.

The Cubs were a game in front on Sept. 1, 1937, but it was the Giants who played in that year's World Series. And only last year the Cubs were in fourth place on Sept. 1, seven games behind the Pirates and the Cubs came through to take their expected beating from the Yanks.

CARDS STILL HOT

The Cards came through again yesterday to beat the Pirates, 4-2, behind the masterly pitching of Curt Davis who held the Bucs to six hits for his 17th victory.

The Bees and Phils were idle, but the Giants sent Harry Gumbert to the mound for the second time in three games and for the second time the Dodgers put the skids under him and won, 5 to 1. Hugh Casey gave the Giants only five hits, but one of them was Mel Ott's 30th homer that spoiled Hugh's shutout.

The pace-setting Reds snagged a 7 to 6 game from the Chicago Cubs after 10 innings under the lights, the Cubs collapsing when pinch-hitter Dick West singled to center, scoring Eddie Joost with the winning run.

SLOPPY GAME

The Yanks and Red Sox maintained the status quo in the other circuit. The Yanks won a sloppy 10-inning affair from the Senators, 9-8, high-lighted by Joe DiMaggio's 18th homer, five runs driven in by him and two of his sensational catches.

The Red Sox made life easy and pleasant for old Lefty Grove as they fell on the apathetic Athletics for 17 hits and a 7-1 decision.

The White Sox made only four hits but one of them—Appling's triple—sandwiched between a pass and an out, were enough to beat young Fred Hutchinson, the Tigers' high priced rookie, 2 to 1.

And the lowly Browns came from behind to catch the Indians and wan out in the 10th, 6-5.

Bluebird Flies 134 Per

CONISTON, Eng., Aug. 18 (AP)—The speedboat Bluebird II, with Sir Malcolm Campbell at the wheel, skimmed over Lake Coniston today at 134 miles an hour, the fastest time ever made by man on water.

Officially this was not a new record. The time must be made both ways over the measured mile.

Discussing his time over the mile, which he covered in 26.7 seconds, Campbell said:

"This proves that the Bluebird's new design is far superior."

This burst of speed was accomplished with the old engine which Sir Henry Seagrave was driving when he was killed on Lake Windemere. It is nine years old. The engine which Campbell will drive for the record probably will go in tomorrow.

ROMANCE IN THE AIR—Jim Londos, erstwhile wrestling champion, smiles happily with his bride after nuptials at Beverly Hills, Calif. The ceremony was performed in the ritual of the Greek Orthodox Church, and here the couple still wear the beautiful traditional marriage crowns.

We Don't Fear Wallop, Says Nova's Manager

ABSECON HEIGHTS, N. J., Aug. 18 (INS)—Lou Nova, the big young man with the crew haircut, wouldn't be surprised if he is knocked down by Tony Galento when they meet at Philadelphia in a 15-round bout on Sept. 7.

That's the kind of a hitter Galento is. But Nova is reasonably certain he will get back on his feet and he sees no chance of Galento lasting more than six rounds. By that time they will have to stop it, if Galento isn't actually out cold.

Nova and his manager, Ray Carlin, sized it up today as not exactly a soft fight, but definitely softer than the one with Max Baer, who never had much of a chance with Nova and finally was saved from utter annihilation by the referee.

Said Carlin today:

"Galento is a real good puncher, and will drop just about anybody he hits. But we don't fear that. We'll get up off the floor and we'll cut him up anyhow, if we don't flatten him."

You don't detect any over-confidence around here, but, nevertheless, the Galento match is regarded as one or two or three warmups in which Nova will engage before he fights Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship next summer.

"We didn't have to take this match," said the manager. "We earned the Louis match by stopping Baer, but this gives us a fill-in between the Baer match and the one with Louis, and we expect to go again in December and along about February to keep in top shape, to make a few bucks and for the good of the cause generally."

Oscar Vitt Quits Coaching Line

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17 (AP)—Gray-haired Oscar Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, indicated he would occupy only a managerial bench in the Tribe's dugout after this season and turn his third base coaching duties over to Oscar Melillo.

"After all these years I really believe a manager can be more valuable to his club if he remains in the dugout," Vitt said.

ALICE, SARAH IN NET FINAL

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB, Aug. 18—Moving closer to their second consecutive national doubles title, Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston trounced the Franco-American tandem team of Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France, and Mrs. Helen Andrus, Stamford, Conn., 6-3, 6-1 today to enter the final round of the 58th annual women's championships.

The Marble-Fabyan combination, top seeded on the domestic list, ran into trouble in the first set, when Mrs. Fabyan's service was broken in the third game, enabling the Andrus-Henrotin team, fourth seeded on the American list, to take a 3-1 lead.

Both Mrs. Andrus and Mme. Henrotin yielded service in the sixth and eight games however, and the top seeded stars ran out the set without further difficulty.

SECOND SET A ROMP

The second set was a romp for the defending champions, the losers taking only the third game, with Mrs. Andrus on the service stripe.

The Marble-Fabyan team enters its final title defense on Sunday, when the winner of tomorrow's Helen Jacobs-Dorothy Workman vs. Kay Stammers-Freda Hammersley semi-final will furnish the opposition for the national and Wimbledon champions.

The unseeded team of Meade Woodsen and Percy Guilford, Los Angeles, advanced to the semi-final of the veterans' doubles by defeating A. D. Hammett and W. R. Chapman, Englewood, N. J., 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

2D SEEDED PAIR WIN

In the lower half of the draw the second seeded pair of Lawrence Baker and Cedric Major, East Hampton, N. Y., also moved into the semi-finals with a 6—1, 6—2 win over Sam Weeds and F. O. Berry, Richmond, Va.

Weston Adams Moves Stable To Marshfield

MARSHFIELD, Aug. 18—Weston W. Adams of Boston, owner of the most powerful string of thoroughbreds in Massachusetts, will campaign a detachment of his stable at the six-day meeting of Marshfield Fair, which will open here next Monday with an eight-race program.

The Adams detachment, headed by the useful Spindletop, arrived here today. In addition to Spindletop, a thoroughbred which has run at every major track in the east, were such good horses as Himarque, Saxophone, Transfina, Consultation and Maestrung.

Already on the grounds, too, is Ben Chapman, veteran horseman, who owns and trains Ouragan and Paddy's Sister. Ouragan, capable seven-year-old bay horse, has been out of the money only twice in 10 starts this year at the major tracks in Maryland and New England.

John Melanson of Belmont, who trains a stable which runs in the colors of his wife, Mrs. D. Melanson, is on the grounds with Truly Yours, winner of the important Maryland Futurity as a two-year old, High Palffy, and Irish Hero.

INJURED JOCKEY TELLS OF SPILL

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 18 (AP)—Even though he lay in a hospital bed with his right shoulder immovable in a rigid cast, Jockey Maurice Berger, was a happy boy today. Injured at Narragansett racetrack early this week, Berger's first concern was for Melvin Calvert, a fellow jockey, who lay unconscious in an adjoining room.

"Gee, I was lucky," said Berger. "That poor kid got it worse than I did. I'll be out of the saddle for a month and that's tough, but poor Calvert is in right bad shape."

FOUR FRACTURES

Calvert is in bad shape. Doctors said that he had four fractures of the frontal bones of his face, two on the lower jaw, one on the upper jaw and one of the right cheek bone. He also suffered a bad concussion of the back of the skull, a possible fracture which will require X-ray pictures to determine. His name is on the danger list.

Berger, uninjured except for the broken collarbone, told his version of the accident. The field in the sixth race had reached the three-eighths pole with four horses in front and the second division tightly packed.

Past the three-eighths pole the leaders started to drift out. Calvert, on Steady Don, apparently thought he saw an opening and started to move up. The horse took back as the opening closed, and in so doing crossed its legs and went down.

UNAVOIDABLE CRASH

Ball o' Fire, Berger's mount, struck Steady Don and went down. Berger said that he is sure of this. He remembers seeing Calvert's skull cap fly from his head as he fell a split second before his own mount crashed into the fallen horse.

Berger declared that the accident was unavoidable. The other jockeys agree with him. Berger, who has been in spills, but who never before suffered a broken bone, summed it up with:

"It couldn't be helped. Nobody was to blame. It was just one of those things."
